

Life Science

I can provide evidence that organisms are made of single cells or many cells.

I can create models that show cells are made of organelles that have specific jobs.

I can identify important materials and processes that are required for cells to function.

I can develop models to show that organisms are made of tissues, organs and organs systems that all have specific jobs.

I can gather and synthesize information on how the nervous system responds and sends messages to the brain.